

PLYMOUTH COUNTY

Plymouth County, the fourth largest county in the state of Iowa, was established on January 15, 1851 and formally organized on October 12, 1858. It is named after the landing place of the Pilgrims on the Mayflower. The county was attached to Woodbury County for judicial and other reasons prior to 1858. Plymouth County began with two civil townships. The county now has 24 townships and covers 865 square miles.

The site of the first courthouse was in Melbourne. It was built in October of 1859 at a cost of $2,000. In 1861 the building was insured, desks were purchased and an outhouse and steps were added. The courthouse in Melbourne had many uses, including winter quarters for soldiers for the federal government, as well as a grocery. The first public school was taught in Melbourne in December 1859. Records show that the school fund was $470 and the number of students registered was 32.

In 1872, by a close vote, the county seat was moved to Le Mars. The town of Le Mars had been platted in 1869, and was named by using the initials of the names of ladies who visited the town with a group of realtors, a state legislator and a state registrar of deeds.

In 1874, residents voted to build a new courthouse and jail in Le Mars on Block 35. Three thousand dollars was approved by the voters and appropriated from the swamp land fund of Sioux City and the Iowa Falls Town Lot and Land Company donated the land.

In 1900, at the general election on November 6, a bond issue was passed to build a new courthouse, at a cost of no more than $70,000. The building was designed by Kinney and Detweiler of Austin, MN and constructed by Emil Miller from 1901-1902. The fireproof building was built of Portage-entry red sandstone and was of the Renaissance style. It contained a tall portico, Corinthian columns and a central tower capped by a large dome. In 1913, the large tower was removed due to the strain it caused.

During the Depression of 1929, many Plymouth County farmers joined an organization calling itself the "Farmers Holiday Group". Their goal was to keep farm products off the market until the desired price was met.

Both the courthouse and the county seat gained national attention in the spring of 1933, when Judge C.C. Bradley was kidnapped by an angry mob of Farm Holiday men and was threatened with a hanging unless he stopped signing farm foreclosure notices. The judge refused to comply and although he was not hung, he was taken out into the country, smeared with oil and dirt and was left to find his own way home. The governor of Iowa ordered out the National Guard and Plymouth County was placed under martial law.

In 1997, a three-story addition was added to the south side of the original Courthouse, giving the county an additional 8,175 sq ft. It was constructed using materials to blend with the original structure at a cost of approximately $850,000. In August 2003, a new 5.4 million dollar Law Enforcement Center / Communication Center complex opened. The old Law Enforcement Center / Jail was demolished in 2004. In 2011, a new two story Annex building was constructed and opened at a cost of approximately $600,000 which contains 7,000 square feet on 2 stories along with a 2 stall garage. The Annex sits on the site of the previous Jail and the site of the original Courthouse that was built in 1874 on Block 35 of LeMars.

Plymouth County is chiefly an agricultural county. Its highest point in the county is in Sioux Township and has an elevation of 1501 feet. The average rainfall over a period of forty years has been between 26 and 28 inches, while the average temperature of the area is 52 degrees. There are 1,426 miles of roadway in Plymouth County. Paved roads make up 365 miles, gravel roads make up 1,018 miles and there are 43 miles of dirt roads.

Plymouth County is 863 square miles.

Then, the payment deadline is extended to include the first business day of the following month. A penalty of 5% is charged each month thereafter with a $5.00 minimum.

The tax sale runs three years before the purchaser is entitled to a tax deed, unless sold at scavenger sale after having previously advertised as delinquent for the two preceding years, in which case the time is one year only. State law requires that all property offered at scavenger sale must be bid in by the county if not sold for full amount of general taxes due. Persons redeeming from the tax sale must show interest in the property.
